- Generally provides for purposes of passing property held in co-ownership with right of survivorship, that property so held passes as if each person survived the other by 120 hours if it is not established by clear and convincing evidence that one of the two co-owners survived the other co-owner by 120 hours.

CONTENT AND OPERATION

Operation of the act

The act outright repeals the prior Descent and Distribution Law on the order of death and enacts in its place the Uniform Simultaneous Death Act.

Effect of nonsurvival by 120 hours for probate purposes

The act provides that except as described below in "Exceptions," a person who is not established by clear and convincing evidence to have survived another specified person by 120 hours is deemed to have predeceased the other person for the following purposes (R.C. 2105.32(A)):

(1) When the title to real or personal property or the devolution of real or personal property depends upon a person's survivorship of the death of another person;

(2) When the right to elect an interest in or exempt a surviving spouse's share of an intestate estate under the Intestate Succession Law depends upon a person's survivorship of the death of another person;

(3) When the right to elect an interest in or exempt an interest of the decedent in the mansion house pursuant to the law governing a surviving spouse's election to receive the mansion house depends upon a person's survivorship of the death of another person;

(4) When the right to elect an interest in or exempt an allowance for support pursuant to the law governing the right of a surviving spouse and minor children to receive an allowance for support depends upon a person's survivorship of the death of another person.

The above provisions do not apply if their application would result in a taking of an intestate estate by the state (R.C. 2105.32(B)).

Effect of nonsurvival by 24 hours on governing instruments

Under the act, except as described below in "Exceptions," a person who is not established by clear and convincing evidence to have survived a specified event by 120 hours is deemed to have predeceased the event for purposes of a provision of a governing instrument that relates to the person surviving an event (R.C. 2105.33). (See "Definitions," below, for definitions of the italicized terms.)

Effect of nonsurvival by 24 hours on co-ownership with right of survivorship

The act specifies that except as described below in "Exceptions" (R.C. 2105.34):

(1) If it is not established by clear and convincing evidence that one of two co-owners with right of survivorship (see "Definitions," below) in specified real or personal property survived the other co-owner by 120 hours, that property must pass as if each person had survived the other person by 120 hours.

(2) If there are more than two co-owners with right of survivorship in specified real or personal property and it is not established by clear and convincing evidence that at least one of the co-owners survived the others by 120 hours, that property must pass in the proportion that each person owns.

Exceptions

The act provides that a person who is not established by clear and convincing evidence to have survived another specified person by 120 hours is not deemed to have predeceased the other person if any of the following apply (R.C. 2105.36(A) and (B)):

(1) The governing instrument contains language dealing explicitly with simultaneous deaths or deaths in a common disaster, and that language is operative under the situation in question.

(2) The governing instrument expressly indicates that a person is not required to survive an event by any specified period in order for any right or interest governed by the instrument to properly vest or transfer.

(3) The governing instrument expressly requires the person to survive the event for a specified period in order for any right or interest governed by the instrument to properly vest or transfer, and the survival of the event by the person or survival of the event by the person for the specified period is established by clear and convincing evidence.

(4) The imposition of a 120-hour requirement of the person's survival of the other specified person causes a nonvested property interest or a power of appointment to be invalid under the statute against perpetuities, and the person's survival of the other specified person is established by clear and convincing evidence.

(5) The application of a 120-hour requirement of survival to multiple governing instruments would result in an unintended failure or duplication of a disposition, and the person's survival of other specified person is established by clear and convincing evidence.

Determination and evidence of death

The act provides that a person is dead if the person has been determined to be dead pursuant to standards established under R.C. 2108.30. A physician who makes a determination of death in accordance with that section and any person who acts in good faith in reliance on a determination of death made by a physician in accordance with that section is entitled to the immunity conveyed by that section. (R.C. 2105.35(A)(1) and (2).)

Under the act, a certified or authenticated copy of a death certificate purporting to be issued by an official or agency of the place where the death of a person purportedly occurred is prima-facie evidence of the fact, place, date, and time of the person's death and the identity of the decedent. A certified or authenticated copy of any record or report of a domestic or foreign governmental agency that a person is missing, detained, dead, or alive is prima-facie evidence of the status and of the dates, circumstances, and places disclosed by the record or report. In the absence of prima-facie evidence of death under this paragraph, the fact of death may be established by clear and convincing evidence, including circumstantial evidence. (R.C. 2105.35(B), (C), and (D).)

In the absence of evidence disputing the time of death stipulated on a document described in the preceding paragraph, a document so described that stipulates a time of death 120 hours or more after the time of death of another person, however the time of death of the other person is determined, establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the person survived the other person by 120 hours (R.C. 2105.35(G)).

Presumption of death

Under the act, except as described in the following paragraph, a presumption of the death of a person arises (1) when the person has disappeared and been continuously absent from the person's place of last domicile for a five-year period without being heard from during the period or (2) when the person has disappeared and been continuously absent from the person's place of last domicile without being heard from and was at the beginning of the person's absence exposed to a specific peril of death, even though the absence has continued for less than a five-year period (R.C. 2105.35(E)).

When a person who is on active duty in the United States Armed Services has been officially determined to be absent in a status of "missing" or "missing in action," a presumption of death arises when the head of the federal department concerned has made a finding of death pursuant to the "Federal Missing Persons Act" (R.C. 2105.35(F)).

Other death determination provisions

The act provides that the provisions described above in "Determination and evidence of death" and "Presumption of death" are in addition to any other provisions of the Revised Code, the Rules of Criminal Procedure, or the Rules of Evidence that pertain to the determination of death and status of a person (R.C. 2105.35(H)).

Effect on payor or other third party

The act provides that a payor (see "Definitions," below) or other third party is not liable for any of the following (R.C. 2105.37(A)):

(1) Making a payment, transferring an item of real or personal property, or otherwise transferring any other benefit to a person designated in a governing instrument who, under the act's provisions, is not entitled to the payment or item of property, if the payment or transfer was made before the payor or other third party received written notice of a claimed lack of entitlement;

(2) Taking any other action not specified above in paragraph (1) in good faith reliance on the person's apparent entitlement under the terms of the governing instrument before the payor or other third party received written notice of a claimed lack of entitlement.

A payor or other third party is liable for a payment, transfer, or other action taken after the payor or other third party receives written notice of a claimed lack of entitlement (R.C. 2105.37(B)).

Under the act, written notice of a claimed lack of entitlement as described above must be mailed to the payor's or other third party's main office or home by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, or served upon the payor or other third party in the same manner as a summons in a civil action. Upon receipt of written notice of a claimed lack of entitlement, a payor or other third party may pay any amount owed or transfer or deposit any item of real or personal property held by it to or with the probate court that has jurisdiction over the decedent's estate. If no probate proceedings have been commenced, upon receipt of written notice of a claimed lack of entitlement, a payor or other third party may pay any amount owed or transfer or deposit any item of real or personal property held by it to or with the probate court located in the county of the decedent's residence. The court must hold the funds or real or personal property until it is determined to whom the funds or real or personal property should be disbursed. The court then must order disbursement of the funds or real or personal property in accordance with that determination. Payments, transfers, or deposits made to or with the court discharge the payor or other third party from all claims for the value of amounts paid to or items of property transferred to or deposited with the court. (R.C. 2105.37(C).)

Effect on purchaser or person receiving property

The act provides that the following persons are neither obligated to return the payment, item of property, or benefit nor liable for the amount of the payment or the value of the item of property or benefit (R.C. 2105.38(A)):

(1) A person who purchases real or personal property that would otherwise be subject to the act's provisions for value and without notice that the person selling or otherwise transferring the real or personal property is not entitled to the real or personal property;

(2) A person who receives a payment or other item of real or personal property in partial or full satisfaction of a legally enforceable obligation without notice that the person making the payment or otherwise transferring the real or personal property is not entitled to the real or personal property.

A person who, not for value, receives a payment, item of real or personal property, or any other benefit to which the person is not entitled under the act is obligated to return the payment, item of real or personal property, or benefit, and is personally liable for the amount of the payment or the value of the item of property or benefit, to the person who is entitled to it (R.C. 2105.38(B)).

The act provides that if R.C. 2105.31 to 2105.39 or any provision of those sections are preempted by federal law with respect to a payment, an item of real or personal property, or any other benefit covered by those sections, a person who, not for value, receives the payment, item of property, or any other benefit to which the person is not entitled under those sections is obligated to return the payment, item of property, or benefit, and is personally liable for the amount of the payment or the value of the item of property or benefit, to the person who would have been entitled to it were those sections or any provision of those sections not preempted (R.C. 2105.38(C)).

Effective date and related provisions

Section 3 of the act contains a specified effective date of January 1, 2002, for the operational provisions of the act; however, the act was not enacted until after that specified date. (Section 3.) Because that specified effective date was not part of an emergency clause, the specified effective date has no effect, and the actual effective date will be on the 91st day after the signature of the Governor in accordance with the standard effective date rules. Additionally, the act's reference to "January 1, 2002," in R.C. 2105.39(A) and (B) is erroneous and should be the effective date of this section.

The act provides that R.C. 2105.31 to 2105.39 do not impair any act done in any proceeding, or any right that accrued, before January 1, 2002. If a right is acquired, extinguished, or barred upon the expiration of a prescribed period of time that has commenced to run prior to January 1, 2002, under any provision of the Revised Code, the provision of the applicable Revised Code section applies with respect to that right. (R.C. 2105.39(A).)

The act states that any rule of construction or presumption that is provided in R.C. 2105.31 to 2105.39 applies to any governing instrument that is executed, or any multiple-party account that is opened, prior to January 1, 2002, unless there is a clear indication of a contrary intent in the governing instrument or multiple-party account (R.C. 2105.39(B)).

Severability clause

The act specifies that if any provision of R.C. 2105.31 to 2105.39 or the application of those sections to any persons or circumstance is held invalid, the invalidity does not affect other provisions or applications of those sections that can be given effect without the invalid provision or application (R.C. 2105.39(C)).

Definitions

The act defines the following terms (R.C. 2105.31):

(1) "Co-owners with right of survivorship" includes joint tenants, tenants by the entireties, and other co-owners of real or personal property, insurance or other policies, or bank or other accounts held under circumstances that entitle one or more persons to the whole of the property or account on the death of the other person or persons.

(2) "Governing instrument" means a deed, will, trust, insurance or annuity policy, account with a transfer-on-death designation or the abbreviation TOD, account with a payable-on-death designation or the abbreviation POD, pension, profit-sharing, retirement, or similar benefit plan, instrument creating or exercising a power of appointment or a power of attorney, or a dispositive, appointive, or nominative instrument of any similar type.

(3) "Payor" means a trustee, insurer, business entity, employer, governmental agency, political subdivision, or any other person authorized or obligated by law or a governing instrument to make payments or transfers.

(4) "Event" includes the death of another person.

Miscellaneous

The act changes the references in certain sections in the Descent and Distribution Law, the Wills Law, and the Presumed Decedents' Law from "sections 2105.01 to 2105.21" or "sections 2105.06 to 2105.21" to "Chapter 2105. of the Revised Code" (R.C. 2105.02, 2105.04, 2105.07, 2105.08, 2107.34, 2121.02, and 2121.06).
