CONTENT AND OPERATION

Urban townships

Overview

Current law defines "urban townships" as townships that adopt a limited home rule government and have a population in their unincorporated territory of 15,000 or more (sec. 504.01(B)--not in the bill). Although this definition exists in current law, there are no requirements in current law that relate particularly to urban townships. The bill proposes to enact a few provisions that relate particularly to them.

Promotions in "civil service" urban townships

General background. Current law permits a township that has a population of 10,000 or more residing within its unincorporated territory and that has a police or fire department of ten or more full-time paid employees to create a township civil service commission (sec. 124.40(B)--not in the bill). If the board of township trustees of such a township decides to have a civil service commission, state law dictates how the commission is created and provides for employee qualifications and the specific process to make appointments and promotions based on merit, fitness, and competitive examinations (R.C. Chapter 124.).

The township civil service commission's jurisdiction is limited to employees of the township fire and/or police department (provided a department has at least ten full-time paid employees). The board of township trustees may appoint the fire chief and the police chief, and those chiefs serve at the pleasure of the board. (Secs. 505.38(C) and 505.49(C); sec. 124.40(B)--not in the bill.)

Filling vacancies by promotion. Current civil service law requires vacancies in positions above the rank of regular civil service township fireman or police patrolman to be filled by competitive promotional examination. Those with at least a minimum passing grade may have seniority, efficiency, or other credits added to their grade, and must be placed on the appropriate eligible list. The person with the highest rating on an eligible list must be appointed to fill a vacancy. In the case of firemen, if two or more examinees receive the same grade, seniority in fire department service must determine the order in which the examinees are placed on the appropriate eligible list and are eligible to be appointed to fill a vacancy. (Secs. 124.44 to 124.46--not in the bill.)

The bill permits an urban township that is also a civil service township to appoint any one of the three highest scorers on the eligible list for a promotional examination to a vacant position in its fire or police department (secs. 505.38(C)(3) and 505.49(C)(3)).

Limited home rule townships

Journals

Current law requires the board of township trustees in a limited home rule township to keep a journal of its proceedings (sec. 504.09). These townships can exercise all powers of local self-government within their unincorporated area, other than powers that are in conflict with general laws, except that they must comply with the requirements and prohibitions of the Limited Home Rule Township Law (sec. 504.04(A)(1)--not in the bill).

Section 507.04 of the Revised Code (not in the bill), a section that applies to all townships, requires the township clerk to keep an accurate record of the proceedings of the board of township trustees at all of its meetings. This, presumably, is a "general law" that a limited home rule township must follow. The bill permits a board of township trustees of a limited home rule township, despite that general law requirement, to designate by a majority vote any person to keep its journal and to take the minutes of its board meetings. (Sec. 504.09.)

Township resolutions

Current law specifies that limited home rule townships must follow specific requirements for the revision or amendment of resolutions, requires them to publish their resolutions in newspapers or by posting in the same manner as municipal corporations under the Revised Code, and permits them to publish their resolutions in book form in the same manner as municipal corporations under the Revised Code. These provisions of the Limited Home Rule Township Law do not distinguish between resolutions adopted by these townships under "general law" requirements or as an exercise of their limited home rule powers not available to other townships.¹ (Sec. 504.12.)

The bill limits the procedures mentioned above to resolutions adopted "pursuant to a township's limited home rule powers" (sec. 504.12).

¹ The term "general law," as used in the Limited Home Rule Township Law, is not defined. Many people interpret it to mean any law related to townships in the Revised Code. That interpretation is not the same interpretation given to "general law" in the context of municipal home rule; however, there is no reason to assume a relationship exists between the terms used in those different contexts. Until a court interprets the term in the Limited Home Rule Township Law or a definition of the term is provided in the Law, it will remain unclear what it refers to. This analysis assumes it refers to any Revised Code provision relevant to townships in general.
