CONTENT AND OPERATION

Marriage law

(R.C. 3101.01)

Under Ohio law, male persons of the age of 18 years, and female persons of the age of 16 years, not nearer of kin than second cousins, and not having a husband or wife living, may be joined in marriage.

Operation of the bill

The bill specifically provides that a marriage may only be entered into by one man and one woman.

The bill declares that any marriage between persons of the same sex is against the strong public policy of the state of Ohio. It states that any marriage between persons of the same sex has no legal force or effect in Ohio and, if attempted to be entered into in Ohio, is void ab initio and must not be recognized by this state.¹ The bill further provides that any marriage entered into by persons of the same sex in any other jurisdiction must be considered and treated in all respects as having no legal force or effect in Ohio and must not be recognized by this state.

The bill declares that the recognition or extension of the specific statutory benefits of a legal marriage to nonmarital relationships between persons of the same sex or different sexes is against the strong public policy of the state of Ohio. It specifies that any public act, record, or judicial proceeding of this state that extends the specific statutory benefits of legal marriage to nonmarital relationships between persons of the same sex or different sexes is void ab initio. For purposes of this provision, "state" means the state of Ohio, including, the General Assembly; the Supreme Court; the offices of all elected state officers; and all departments, boards, offices, commissions, agencies, institutions, and other instrumentalities of the state of Ohio. "State," as in the bill does not include political subdivisions.

The bill specifies that this provision does not prohibit the extension of specific benefits otherwise enjoyed by all persons, married or unmarried, to nonmarital relationships between persons of the same sex or different sexes.

The bill further declares that any public act, record, or judicial proceeding of any other state, country, or other jurisdiction that extends the specific benefits of legal marriage to nonmarital relationships between persons of the same sex or different sexes must be considered and treated in all respects as having no legal force or effect in Ohio and must not be recognized by this state.

¹ Void ab initio means null from the beginning, as from the first moment when a contract is entered into. A contract is void ab initio if it seriously offends law or public policy, in contrast to a contract that is merely voidable at the election of one party to the contract. Black's Law Dictionary, 7th ed. 1999.

Intent clause

(Section 3)

The bill specifies that the General Assembly:

(1) Declares and reaffirms the state of Ohio's historical commitment to the institution of marriage as a union between a man and a woman as husband and wife;

(2) Declares its intent to define marriage and clarify that relationships that are intended as substitutes for marriage (see COMMENT), will not be recognized in Ohio;

(3) Declares its intent not to make substantive changes in the law of this state that is in effect on the day prior to the effective date of the act with respect to the validity of marriages heretofore occurring within this state.

COMMENT

The bill references 15 V.S.A. 1202, which prescribes the requirements for a valid civil union in Vermont as follows:

For a civil union to be established in Vermont, it shall be necessary that the parties to a civil union satisfy all of the following criteria:

(1) Not be a party to another civil union or a marriage.

(2) Be of the same sex and therefore excluded from the marriage laws of this state.

(3) Meet the criteria and obligations set forth in 18 V.S.A. chapter 106 (Civil unions--records and licenses).
