Marriage law

(R.C. 3101.01)

Under continuing Ohio law, males of the age of 18 years, and females of the age of 16 years, not nearer of kin than second cousins, and not having a husband or wife living, may be joined in marriage.

The bill specifically provides that a marriage may only be entered into by one man and one woman.

The bill declares that any marriage between persons of the same sex ("same-sex marriage") is against the strong public policy of the state of Ohio. It states that any same-sex marriage has no legal force or effect in Ohio and, if attempted to be entered into in Ohio, is void ab initio and is not to be recognized by the state.¹ The bill further provides that any same-sex marriage entered into in any other jurisdiction is to be treated in all respects as having no legal force or effect in Ohio and is not to be recognized by this state.

The recognition or extension by the state of the specific statutory benefits of a legal marriage to nonmarital relationships between persons of the same sex or different sexes is also declared to be against the strong public policy of the state. The bill specifies that any public act, record, or judicial proceeding of this state that extends the specific statutory benefits of legal marriage to nonmarital relationships between persons of the same sex or different sexes is void ab initio. For purposes of this provision, "state" means the state of Ohio, including the General Assembly, the Supreme Court, the offices of all elected state officers, and all departments, boards, offices, commissions, agencies, institutions, and other instrumentalities of the state of Ohio. "State" does not include political subdivisions.

This provision does not, however, prohibit the extension of specific benefits otherwise enjoyed by all persons, married or unmarried, to nonmarital relationships between persons of the same sex or different sexes, including the extension of benefits conferred by a statute not expressly limited to married persons. This provision also does not affect the validity of private agreements that are otherwise valid under Ohio law.

Under the bill, any public act, record, or judicial proceeding of any other state, country, or other jurisdiction outside this state that extends the specific benefits of legal marriage to nonmarital relationships between persons of the same sex or different sexes has no legal force or effect in Ohio and is not recognized by the state.

¹ Void ab initio means null from the beginning, as from the first moment when a contract is entered into. A contract is void ab initio if it seriously offends law or public policy, in contrast to a contract that is merely voidable at the election of one party to the contract. Black's Law Dictionary, 7th ed. 1999.

Intent clause

(Section 3)

The bill specifies that the General Assembly:

(1) Declares and reaffirms the state of Ohio's historical commitment to the institution of marriage as a union between a man and a woman as husband and wife;

(2) Declares its intent to define marriage and clarify that relationships that are intended as substitutes for marriage (see COMMENT) will not be recognized in Ohio;

(3) Declares its intent not to prohibit the extension of specific benefits otherwise enjoyed by all persons to relationships between persons of the same sex or different sexes;

(4) Declares its intent not to make substantive changes in the law of this state that is in effect on the day prior to the bill's effective date with respect to the validity of marriages heretofore occurring within Ohio.

COMMENT

The bill references Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 15, § 1202, which prescribes the requirements for a valid civil union in Vermont, as follows:

For a civil union to be established in Vermont, it shall be necessary that the parties to a civil union satisfy all of the following criteria:

(1) Not be a party to another civil union or a marriage;

(2) Be of the same sex and therefore excluded from the marriage laws of this state;

(3) Meet the criteria and obligations set forth in 18 V.S.A. chapter 106 (Civil unions--records and licenses).
