CONTENT AND OPERATION

ADOPTION PROVISIONS

Birth mother's living expenses

(R.C. 3107.055)

Under current law, an attorney, private noncustodial agency (PNA), private child placing agency (PCPA), petitioner (prospective adoptive parent), or person acting on the petitioner's behalf may pay for specific expenses connected with a child's permanent surrender, placement, or adoption. Generally these expenses include physician or hospital expenses incurred by the birth mother or child around the time of the child's birth; attorney, agency, or court expenses related to permanent surrender, placement, or the adoption; the child's temporary routine maintenance and medical costs if the prospective adoptive parent refuses placement; guardian ad litem fees; and temporary foster care expenses. No other payments related to the permanent surrender, placement, or adoption, are permitted.

The bill adds the birth mother's living expenses to the list of approved payments connected with a child's permanent surrender, placement, or adoption. The living expenses cannot exceed $3,000 and must be incurred during pregnancy and up to 60 days after the child is born. Payments from the petitioner to the birth mother for living expenses must be made through the attorney or agency arranging the adoption.

Aligning adoption and foster home studies

(R.C. 3107.033 and 5103.03)

Generally, current law requires both prospective foster parents and prospective adoptive parents to undergo home studies to ascertain their suitability to foster or adopt a child.

The bill requires that any rules adopted by the Director of Job and Family Services regarding home studies align the foster care and adoption home study content, time periods, and processes.

Prospective adoptive home visits

(R.C. 3107.101)

Current law requires the assessor providing placement or post-placement services in a prospective adoptive home to conduct a prospective adoptive home visit in that home not later than seven days after the child to be adopted is placed and every 30 days thereafter until a probate court issues a final decree of adoption.

The bill requires that the home visits be conducted monthly, rather than every 30 days.

Juvenile court consent required

(R.C. 3107.06)

Under current law, a juvenile court must consent to an adoption before the probate court can grant certain adoption petitions. This situation occurs in situations in which the juvenile court has jurisdiction to determine custody of the minor, if the child has a legal guardian or custodian and the legal guardian or custodian is not authorized by law or a court order to consent to the adoption.

The bill removes the need for the juvenile court's consent in such cases.

When consent to adopt is not required of a parent

(R.C. 3107.07)

A parent's consent to the adoption of his or her child is not needed if a probate court finds that the parent has failed without justifiable cause to (1) communicate with his or her child or (2) provide for the maintenance and support of the child for at least one year prior to the filing of an adoption petition or placement of the child in the prospective adoptive home. Under the bill, to avoid having consent to adoption not be needed, the parent must regularly communicate with the child and significantly provide for the maintenance and support of the child during that one-year period.

Finalization of interlocutory order

(R.C. 3107.14)

When a probate court holds a final adoption petition hearing, and the adoption is generally in the best interest of the child and all other relevant requirements have been met, the court may issue an interlocutory order of adoption instead of a final decree of adoption. An interlocutory order allows the court time for observation, investigation, and a further report on the adoptive home. It must include a date on which the order automatically becomes final. Except in adoptions by foster parents or relatives, this date must be between six months and one year from the date the court issues the order (but can be sooner vacated for good cause). The bill changes the start of the time period of the interlocutory order to the date the person to be adopted is placed in the adoptive home.

Disrupted adoptions

(R.C. 2151.361)

When an adoptive parent enters into an agreement with a public children services agency (PCSA) or PCPA to place his or her adopted child in the temporary custody of the agency or the child is committed under the Juvenile Law, a juvenile court may issue an order that requires the adoptive parent to pay for the care, support, maintenance, and education of the child. The court must consider a number of factors, including, the ability of the parents to pay for the care, support, maintenance, and education of the child, when deciding whether to issue such an order. The bill requires that the court also consider the ability of the parents to meet the needs of all other children residing in the home when deciding whether to issue the order.

Requesting nonidentifying adoption information

(R.C. 3107.66 and R.C. 3107.01 and 3107.60 (not in the bill))

Current law allows a birth parent of an adopted person, a birth sibling over age 18 years, or a birth family member of a deceased birth parent to submit a written request to the agency or attorney who arranged the adopted person's adoption, or the probate court that finalized the adoption, for nonidentifying information about the adopted person or adoptive parent contained in the agency's, attorney's, or court's adoption records. Unless the agency or attorney has permanently ceased to arrange adoptions, the agency, attorney, or court must provide the birth parent, birth sibling, or birth family member the information sought within a reasonable amount of time and may charge a reasonable fee for providing the information.

The bill specifies that a birth parent may request the nonidentifying information only if the adopted person is at least 18 years old.

Under existing law, "identifying information" means any of the following with regard to a person: first name, last name, maiden name, alias, Social Security number, address, telephone number, place of employment, number used to identify the person for the purpose of the Statewide Education Management Information System, and any other number federal or state law requires or permits to be used to identify the person.

Also, under existing law, "nonidentifying information" means, for both the Open Adoption Law and the Request for Adoption Information Law, any information that is not identifying information, and explicitly specifies that the following is "nonidentifying information": (1) a birth parent's age at the time the birth parent's child is adopted, (2) the medical and genetic history of the birth parents, (3) the age, sex, and medical and genetic history of an adopted person's birth sibling and extended family members, (4) a person's heritage and ethnic background, educational level, general physical appearance, religion, occupation, and cause of death, and (5) any information that may be included in a social and medical history related to the adoption.

The bill adopts a new definition of "nonidentifying information" for the Request for Adoption Information Law (the definition of "nonidentifying information" for the Open Adoption Law is not changed). For the Request for Adoption Information Law, "nonidentifying information" is information that is not identifying information.

Adoption as an option

(R.C. 3313.6011, 3317.024, 5107.30, 5153.122, and 5153.123)

The bill requires all of the following to emphasize adoption as an option for unintended pregnancies:

- Instruction in venereal disease education that must be included in the curriculum of schools under the control of a board of education, governing board of an educational service center, or cooperative education school district;¹
- Graduation, reality, and dual-role skills (GRADS) programs that are designed to provide intervention and instruction to pregnant and parenting students in eligible school districts or joint vocational school districts;
- The Learning, Earning, and Parenting Program designed to encourage pregnant or parenting teens participating in Ohio Works First to attend and complete high school or the equivalent.

The bill also requires PCSA caseworker training and PCSA caseworker supervisor training to include courses on educating pregnant or parenting persons on adoption as an option for unintended pregnancies.

¹ A student's parent or guardian may request that the student be excused from the venereal disease education under current law (R.C. 3313.60(A)(5)(c)).

Child-Centered Recruitment Task Force

(Section 3)

The bill requires the Ohio Department of Job and Family Services (ODJFS) to establish a Child-Centered Recruitment Task Force. ODJFS must also provide the members with meeting space and administrative support. The Task Force is to consist of the ODJFS Director, adoption professionals, and at least one professional from a PCSA, PNA, and PCPA. One member of the Task Force is to represent an agency that has created, utilized, or is currently utilizing, child-centered recruitment. The members are to serve without compensation.

The Task Force must compile all effective procedures, models, and other relevant information regarding child-centered recruitment that PCSAs, PNAs, and PCPAs currently using child-centered recruitment utilize when seeking adoptive families for children in permanent custody. After compiling the procedures, models, or other relevant information, the Task Force must create a uniform child-centered recruitment model based on the information compiled. The model must include recommendations for finding an adoptive family for children who have been in the custody of a PCSA for at least one year and children who are nine years of age or older, in the custody of PCSAs, and do not have potential adoptive families identified. Not later than December 1, 2008, the Task Force must disseminate the model to all PCSAs, PNAs, and PCPAs in Ohio. On dissemination of the uniform child-centered recruitment model, the Task Force is to cease to exist.

CHILD WELFARE PROVISIONS

Dispositions for an abused, neglected, or dependent child

Current law allows a juvenile court to make one of several dispositions for a child who is adjudicated an abused, neglected, or dependent child.

Temporary custody

(R.C. 2151.353 and 2151.415)

One of the dispositions that a juvenile court may make in the case of an adjudicated abused, neglected, or dependent child is to place the child in the temporary custody of (1) a PCSA, (2) a PCPA, (3) either parent or a relative, (4) a probation officer for placement in a certified foster home, or (5) any other court-approved home. The temporary custody order expires one year after either the date that the complaint was filed or the date the child was first placed in shelter care, whichever is earlier. However, the temporary custody order continues in effect beyond that time if the PCSA or PCPA that has temporary custody of the child files a motion for the court to make a new disposition regarding the child. In this case, the temporary custody order does not terminate until the court makes the new disposition.

One of the new dispositions the court may make is to extend the temporary custody order for an additional six months. The temporary custody order may then be extended another six months, for a total of one year.

The bill prohibits the court from extending the original temporary custody order beyond two years from the date the complaint was filed or when the child was placed in shelter care, whichever is earlier and regardless of any previous extensions.

Permanent custody

(R.C. 2151.353, 2151.414, and 2151.415)

Permanent custody is another disposition a juvenile court may make in a case of an adjudicated abused, neglected, or dependent child.

Factors in awarding permanent custody. If a juvenile court determines, by clear and convincing evidence, at a permanent custody hearing that one or multiple specific factors exist as to each of a child's parents, the court must enter a finding that the child cannot be placed with either parent within a reasonable time or should not be placed with either parent.

Whether a parent, under current Ohio law, has had parental rights involuntarily terminated with respect to a sibling of a child is among the factors that require a juvenile court to enter such a finding. The bill provides that the involuntary termination does not have to have occurred under current Ohio law but may also have occurred under an existing or former law in Ohio, any other state, or the United States that is substantially equivalent. Under this criterion under the bill, the parent also must have failed to provide clear and convincing evidence that, notwithstanding the prior termination, the parent can provide a legally secure permanent placement and adequate care for the health, welfare, and safety of the child.

Mandatory permanent custody. Currently, if a PCSA or PCPA files for permanent custody of a child, a juvenile court may grant, modify, or dispose of the motion for permanent custody. If all of the following circumstances exist, the bill requires the court to place such a child in the permanent custody of a PCSA or PCPA:

- The court determines by clear and convincing evidence that the child cannot be placed with one of the child's parents within a reasonable time or should not be placed with either parent and certain factors exist with respect to the parents;
- The child has been in an agency's custody for two years or longer and no longer qualifies for temporary custody;
- The child does not meet the requirements for a planned permanent living arrangement;
- Prior to the dispositional hearing, no relative or other interested person has filed, or has been identified in, a motion for legal custody of the child.

Length of residential or institutional care

(R.C. 2151.353 and 2151.415)

Another disposition a juvenile court may make is to place the child in a planned permanent living arrangement with a PCSA or PCPA. The court may place the child in a planned permanent living arrangement if certain circumstances exist, one of which is that the child is unable to function in a family-like setting because of physical, mental, or psychological problems or needs and must remain in residential or institutional care. The bill specifies that this circumstance is that the child must remain in residential or institutional care "now and for the foreseeable future beyond the date of the child's dispositional hearing."
