Local Fiscal Highlights

- A school district opting to use its motor vehicles for out-of-state travel above the current maximum of 240 miles will incur costs associated with traveling the extra distance. Presumably, however, a district would only choose this option as a less expensive alternative to hiring a private bus charter company for travel.

Detailed Fiscal Analysis

The bill increases, from 240 to 1,000, the number of miles that a school district board can authorize its motor vehicles for out-of-state travel. A school district that opts to go above the current 240-mile limit will incur expenses for the additional costs, such as for additional gasoline and vehicle maintenance, associated with the increased travel. Presumably, a school district opting to incur the increased expenses for traveling the extra distance with their own vehicles will do so only as a less expensive alternative to hiring a private charter bus company.
